

---

1000 Islands

---

Let's talk, neighbor to neighbour. The 1000 Islands has always been a place where Canadians and Americans come together—whether for a weekend getaway, a family reunion, or to simply soak in the natural beauty of the St. Lawrence River.

We know the political back-and-forth over tariffs and trade isn't exactly setting the stage for warm and fuzzy travel vibes right now. But here's the thing: The 1000 Islands isn't about politics. It's about people. It's about the families who've made this their vacation tradition for generations. It's about the friendships that don't stop at the border. It's a destination that celebrates its uniqueness of American and Canadian soil.

Here on the American side of the 1000 Islands, we understand that crossing the border right now isn't high on your priority list. But I hope you know that we are thinking of you and value our relationship more than ever. Our partnership and friendship is the core of why the 1000 Islands thrives. It takes both of our countries to celebrate our castles, waterways and small-town charm.

I know these conversations are best left in person, which is why I'm headed to Toronto on May 15 for a media mission. I would love to have the opportunity to meet with you.

Warm regards,

Corey Fram
Director, Thousand Islands International
Tourism Council

---

Visit 1000 Islands | #1000Islands

Try email marketing for free today!